

Content Outline

Christina Pan

Project Title: Ancient Spices of Asia

I'd like to build a site dedicated to the various spices used in Asian cuisine, from the cardamom pods of Indian curries to the five-star anise of Chinese braised pork. In addition to describing their flavors and best combinations, I'd also like to describe their history and any healing properties they may have. Spices have a long history, and to use them is to connect with ancient civilization.

I'm thinking of building a multi-page site as I believe there is enough content for multiple pages. The content can be organized in various ways, including by spice or by dish.

(maybe organize the site like some sort of tree/timeline, to show which spices descended from which? or like a taxidermy sheet)

Home Page/Introduction – Introduce the most famous spices and give a short intro to their long history

Common combinations/dishes

History

Healing properties

Sources – All sources used within the site

https://www.mccormickscienceinstitute.com/resources/history-of-spices#:~:text=Spices%20indigenous%20to%20India%20\(e.g., 2003%3B%20Tapsell%2C%202006\).&text=Spices%20such%20as%20cardamom%2C%20ginger,different%20types%20of%20health%20benefits.&text=Spices%20such%20as%20cardamom%2C%20ginger,different%20types%20of%20health%20benefits).

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/List\_of\_Indian\_spices